3.4.2. Awards and Recognition Received for Extension Activities from Government and non- government Recognized Bodies

Awards and rewards hold significant importance for institutions across various sectors, including education, business, non-profits, and more awards bring recognition and prestige to an institution, signaling to stakeholders, competitors, and the public that the institution excels in its field. This recognition can enhance the institution's reputation and standing.

Shri G.P.M. Degree College of Science & Commerce strive to stand out in all field, whether in academia, business, or other sectors. The management of Shri G.P.M. Degree College are well known for emphasizing skill and value based education. The Institution has recognized for excellence are more likely to attract high-caliber talent. Potential employees, whether faculty, staff, or leadership, are often drawn to institutions with a track record of success and recognition.

Awards generate positive publicity and increase the visibility of an institution. This heightened visibility can attract attention from the media, potential collaborators, and the wider community, leading to increased opportunities for partnerships and collaborations.

Awards serve as external validation of an institution's achievements and capabilities. This validation enhances the institution's credibility, both internally and externally, making it more trustworthy in the eyes of stakeholders, including students, parents, and funding bodies.

Alumni take pride in being associated with an institution that receives awards. Positive recognition can lead to increased engagement with alumni, fostering a sense of loyalty and encouraging support through donations, mentorship programs, and other forms of involvement.

Awards open doors to networking opportunities with other award-winning institutions, industry leaders, and potential collaborators. This networking can lead to valuable partnerships, research collaborations, and knowledge exchange. Pursuing awards often requires institutions to set and achieve high standards. The process of competing for awards encourages a culture of continuous improvement, innovation, and excellence within the institution.

Awards can attract attention from funding bodies, investors, and donors. Institutions with a track record of excellence are more likely to receive financial support, enabling them to invest in infrastructure, research, and other strategic initiatives. awards and rewards contribute to an institution's success by providing recognition, fostering a positive organizational culture, attracting talent, and opening up new opportunities for growth and collaboration.

Shri G.P.M. Degree College of Science & Commerce has always believe that the pursuit of excellence, as reflected in awards, can have a transformative impact on the overall health and vitality of an institution.
